OUR MISSION

The mission of the Fox Cities Performing Arts Center is to serve as a gathering place for the community to engage in educational opportunities and enhance understanding and enjoyment of life through the creation and presentation of the arts. We will do this by providing a premier venue for performing arts attractions and a dynamic environment for our arts organizations.
DEAR FRIENDS OF THE FOX CITIES P.A.C. ,

As the 2009/10 season gets underway at the Fox Cities Performing Arts Center, we invite you to pause for a moment and reflect on this past year’s many highlights and achievements. Following a wonderful fifth anniversary season in 2007/08, the Center continued to develop into a mature organization whose bright lights shown throughout the region as a close-to-home cultural destination and an artistic cornerstone in our very special community.

It is no secret that the economic conditions of this past year brought with it many challenges, to all of us as individuals, to this organization as a nonprofit and to our community as a part of a global society facing real, systemic distress. Yet as the Center’s 2008/09 season came to a close, we were left in awe of the foresight of this organization’s founders to envision a performing arts center that can withstand external pressures and remain a viable and sustainable part of this community. Thanks to incredible community support, the Center maintained its financial integrity with lean operations, a strong structure and a focused commitment to a mission that resonates in our community.

The Fox Cities Performing Arts Center’s team was proud to deliver some of its greatest programming to date as part of the 2008/09 season. With the Wisconsin premiere of the Broadway blockbuster Wicked, a heartwarming national broadcast of Garrison Keillor’s “A Prairie Home Companion”® and an education series that touched the lives of more than 27,000 students, we are proud to say that the Center’s presence in the Fox Cities is stronger than ever.

Speaking on behalf of the Center’s staff and board of directors, we feel extremely fortunate that the Fox Cities community has continued to value the Center’s programming and services. As ticket buyers, donors, volunteers and neighbors, the success of the Center is wholly dependent on your support and dedication to that original vision of a gathering place for the community, where people can connect with one another in shared experiences through the arts. Thank you for your commitment, dedication and support last season. We hope the Fox Cities Performing Arts Center had a positive impact on your life, during a time when we could all use an opportunity to lift our spirits.

Thank you, again, for your support. We will strive, in every effort, to exceed your expectations in the year ahead.

Warmest regards,

Susan Stockton, president

Mike Weller, chairman of the board
WICKED IN THE FOX CITIES

When Wicked swept into the Fox Cities, there was no doubt it would be unforgettable. The anticipation for the Broadway blockbuster ignited an excitement that radiated through the Fox Cities, Northeast Wisconsin and throughout the Midwest.

Yet behind the curtain, the Fox Cities Performing Arts Center capitalized on the power of the performing arts to make real, measurable impacts on the quality of life in this community. The Fox Cities “has been changed for good” by Wicked.
COMMUNITY IDENTITY
Broadway blockbusters and Wisconsin premieres like Wicked are a statewide event, putting Appleton on the map for the arts. The Wicked cast and visitors from throughout Wisconsin and the Midwest were amazed by the outpouring of community spirit. Well-known Broadway titles create a “buzz” for the performing arts like nothing else can. Recognizing the potential of Wicked to draw visitors, the Center worked with the Fox Cities Convention and Visitors Bureau to secure a J.E.M. (joint effort marketing) grant. As a result, the Center welcomed 17,297 new ticket buyers.

EDUCATIONAL IMPACT
Beyond the unforgettable performances, the show inspired learning opportunities through tour groups, master classes, cast chatbacks and workshops throughout its four-week run in the Fox Cities.

To share one example, the Center developed “Wicked Politics,” a program for at-risk students enrolled in Kaukauna High School’s alternative program. Forty at-risk students studied the impact of popularity and propaganda in the election process. After seeing a performance, meeting members of the cast and holding a mock election for the mayor of Oz, students surveyed were less likely to miss school, more interested in learning and expressed a more optimistic outlook for their futures.

SOCIAL IMPACT
Recognizing the impact of the performing arts in enriching education and the community at large, community volunteers organized the Wonderfully Wicked fundraising gala to further support the Center and its mission.

Community leaders, artists, volunteers, students, businesses large and small and an engaged audience joined together to celebrate Wicked’s arrival, raising more than $200,000 in support of the Center’s subsidized mission-based programs.

ECONOMIC VITALITY
The Center collaborated with Appleton Downtown, Inc. and local businesses to create a community-wide promotion surrounding Wicked.

In the depths of this past year’s recession, small businesses were bolstered by the $18,286,414* economic impact generated by the 2008/09 season.

The Fox Cities Performing Arts Center is an organization that is active in the community, bringing people together to have a shared experience of the arts. When people think of the Fox Cities Performing Arts Center, they often think of the bright lights of Broadway that shine right here in the Fox Cities. The M&I Bank Broadway Across America – Fox Cities Series plays an important role in the Center’s programming, attracting and entertaining both new audiences and a committed base of Season Ticket Holders. In addition to Wicked, the 2008/09 season presented political intrigue in Frost/Nixon, family experiences with Chitty Chitty Bang Bang, musical classics like Chicago, Movin’ Out and Grease, a trip back in the history of Ireland with Riverdance and the mature humor of Avenue Q.

For many, Broadway is the first introduction to artistic excellence at the Center. The Boldt Arts Alive! Series provides a window to the world’s cultures and serves as a critical component of the Center’s subsidized mission-based programming.

Dance captain Steven Sofia leads a class of more than 40 attendees learning the routine for “All That Jazz” from Chicago at the YMCA in downtown Appleton in October.
The 2008/09 season featured several performances that were both entertaining and enlightening with a timely engagement of The Capitol Steps leading up to the 2008 presidential election, a world perspective with Soweto Gospel Choir, the grace of a traditional ballet with the State Ballet Theatre of Russia’s Cinderella and the time-honored American classic, To Kill A Mockingbird.

In March, Garrison Keillor’s “A Prairie Home Companion”® explored the American experience, highlighting the Fox Cities as a unique corner of the world in a live broadcast heard by four million people nationwide.

The Center also seeks to deepen the artistic experience with Appleton Papers Inc. Community Engagement Activities that reach audiences of all ages, impacting both the arts novice and the enthusiast. In 2008/09, the Center expanded its free Appleton Papers Inc. Community Engagement Activities to involve 73 percent of the season’s titles, impacting more than 12,000 ticket holders. The 2008/09 season included a postshow question and answer session with dancers from Diavolo Dance Theatre, student presentations led by local puppetry enthusiasts Dave and Cassie Payne, a YMCA dance workshop featuring the choreography of Chicago and the memories of a local historian as History Museum at the Castle volunteer Nancy Barker set the stage for In The Mood, just to name a few.

In total, the Fox Cities Performing Arts Center hosted more than 380 events during the 2008/09 season. With its mission to serve as a gathering place for the community, the Center continued to make its building accessible for community events. Last year, 74 community organizations held functions at the Center including its resident partner, the Fox Valley Symphony.
The Thrivent Financial for Lutherans Education Series is a cornerstone of the Center’s subsidized, mission-based programming, providing a vital service valued by educators in the Fox Cities, throughout Northeast Wisconsin and even into the Upper Peninsula of Michigan. With programming specifically selected to match curriculum standards for grades PreK-12, this series introduces learning beyond the classroom walls that complements English, art, music, history, science and social studies lesson plans.

Since beginning in 2002, the Thrivent Financial for Lutherans Education Series has steadily grown as educators look to the Center as a resource for curriculum enrichment. In 2008/09, the Center once again achieved record attendance, directly impacting 27,324 students and educators.

More than a quick field trip, the education series provides educators with support materials in advance of the performance, so the artistic... impression created by actors on stage lasts long after the bus ride back to school. In 2008/09, the Center provided study guides, enrichment activities, workshops, demonstrations and the popular Page to Stage essay contest.

The Center ensures the arts reach all segments of the community through an extensive scholarship and donation program that shared the season with 1,380 underserved community members. The Center also donated 356 tickets to local non-profit organizations, inviting each to a world of possibilities at the Center.

In 2008/09, the Center also continued to expand the boundaries of learning with the Fifth Annual Fox Cities Choral Music Festival involving high school choirs from Fox Valley Lutheran, Freedom, Hortonville and Winneconne. In 2008, the festival connected 163 local students with noted choral director Dr. Galen Darrough, director of choral activities at the University of Northern Colorado. After two days of rehearsals with the guest conductor and other participating choirs, students had the opportunity to experience performing in a world-class facility for a public audience.

“Our experience at the Center enriched our choir beyond words, and it shows daily in rehearsal. The challenge of the Fox Cities Choral Music Festival put a fire in these kids, and they proved that intense focus and work ethic can bring unbelievable results!”

– Shelley Nulton, choir director, Hortonville High School
As the lights dim and the audience falls silent before a performance at the Fox Cities Performing Arts Center, the theater becomes a magical place – traveling in time, flying across oceans and exploring undiscovered realms of our imaginations. In each audience, there are people of all ages experiencing this adventure for the first time, discovering new horizons through the shared experience of the performing arts.

Inspired by a national program developed by the The Broadway League, the Center sought a way to create such unforgettable, first-time experiences for families in the Fox Cities who would otherwise be unable to afford tickets.

Knowing their commitment to building a stronger community by fostering stronger families, the Center approached John and Sally Mielke with an opportunity to share their passion for the arts. As Season Ticket Holders and longtime supporters of the Annual Partner campaign, John and Sally understood the impact they could make in their community by sharing their love for the arts with underserved families through a gift from their family fund at the Community Foundation for the Fox Valley Region.

In 2008/09, the Center partnered with the Boys and Girls Club to create Family First Nights®. Seven families were selected to see Chitty Chitty Bang Bang, Wicked, Grease and To Kill A Mockingbird. Parents, children and siblings experienced the arts as a family for the first time, generating enthusiasm for time together as a family and the performing arts while fostering improved communication.

“I would never be able to give this opportunity to my three boys. I am ever so blessed by the Mielke’s generosity! Our family has been so privileged to be part of this educational experience!”

– Tammy Tetzke, participant in Family First Nights®

THE REAL IMPACT OF GIVING
As a nonprofit organization, the Fox Cities Performing Arts Center relies on community contributions to bring its mission to life each season. Programs like the Boldt Arts Alive! Series, the Thrivent Financial for Lutherans Education Series, Appleton Papers Inc. Community Engagement Activities and community use of the Center by area nonprofit and community organizations would not be possible without the generous support of more than 800 Annual Partners.

Despite the economic outlook during the 2008/09 season, the Center witnessed a 8.2 percent growth in the number of Annual Partners, with gifts ranging from $50 to $100,000. Each gift, large or small, combined to provide the funds necessary for the Center to maintain affordable ticket prices, provide financial support for educational programming and ensure community access to the arts.

Community members also contribute to the Center with their actions, by attending performances and volunteering their time at the Fox Cities P.A.C. The Center’s commitment to providing a world-class arts experience could not be fulfilled without the support of its 622 dedicated volunteers. In 2008/09, volunteers contributed 31,394 hours to Center operations, a figure that would amount to $540,291* in paid wages. People of all ages and from all walks of life value the Fox Cities Performing Arts Center and share their time and enthusiasm in bringing its mission to life everyday.

* Bureau of Labor Statistics for the State of Wisconsin
Despite this past year’s shifting economic climate, the Fox Cities Performing Arts Center’s 2008/09 audited statements show an organization that is lean, efficient and supported by a variety of revenue sources. This diversity in revenue, represented by contributions, grants, earned income such as ticket sales and its annual endowment distribution, enabled the Center to successfully weather this past year’s economic slowdown.

In an effort to be proactive against the economic downturn, the Fox Cities Performing Arts Center placed additional focus on financial transparency and efficient operations, particularly as related to administrative and fundraising costs. As a result, the Center beat its operational budget projections by 5.5 percent, successfully avoiding layoffs and reductions to programming.

By evaluating the Center’s business model, the board of directors and staff at the Fox Cities P.A.C. are confident the organization is a lean, fiscally responsible nonprofit organization, driven by mission and supported by a healthy ratio of earned and contributed revenue (Diagram A). The Center’s senior management benchmarks its programming and growth in comparison to other performing arts centers, surpassing the national average with 73.5 percent of total expenditures directed at achieving its mission.

As the Center matured, its board of directors and the Community Foundation for the Fox Valley Region, Inc. mutually agreed to transfer oversight of investment funds to the Center’s finance and budget committee. The funds are managed by Thrivent Financial for Lutherans, the Center’s long-term investment manager.

Shakespeare & Company’s Hamlet began the 2008/09 season with a dramatic, modern interpretation.
Taylor Hicks, of American Idol fame, lit the stage as Teen Angel in Grease.
Performers from Diavolo Dance Theatre captured the audience’s attention by combining elements of dance and gymnastics with surrealistic sets.
CONTRIBUTORS  (as of June 30, 2009)
